PLAN UNVEILING FOR SEPTEMBER

Doubleday and Wadsworth Statues to be Dedicated this Autumn.

COL. BECKWITH IS HERE

Bases Ready and Pedestals will be Placed before Long. One of Statues Cast. Two Day Event.

Dedications of the fine bronze statues to General Doubleday and General Wadsworth, which are to be erected this summer on Reynolds' avenue and Oak Ridge, are set for the last week in September. Appropriate ceremonies will be arranged for both of them.

Colonel Clinton Beckwith, of the New York State Monuments Commission, is now in Gettysburg making arrangements in connection with the completion of the work. The concrete bases for the memorials were put in last fall, the granite work is being completed at the quarries at Barre, Vermont, and one of the bronze statues has already been cast at a New York studio. The other will be cast before many weeks.

September 24, 25, 26, and 27 have been tentatively selected for ceremonies of unveiling at Gettysburg and Antietam. At Antietam the New York Commission will dedicate the monument to the 104th New York and will also hold suitable ceremonies at the coping about the New York plot. The monuments here may be dedicated on two separate days, but this has not been finally determined.

The scale on which unveilings of other New York memorials have been carried out would promise well for the affairs here this fall. The fact that the Regular infantry commands are here, and that there will be no difficulty in securing their participation, will lend much of the spectacular to the events, and speakers of note will handle that part of the program acceptably.

The memorials are of excellent design and will be handsome additions to the First Day's Field.

FREE LINCOLN WAY

Begin Negotiations to Take Over Toll Roads.

Some time this week Joseph W. Hunter first deputy state highway commissioner, will visit York and begin negotiations for the taking over of the toll roads of York which constitute a part of the Lincoln Highway. In speaking of the toll road situation State Highway Commissioner Frank B. Black says that the state department wants York county to benefit by the recent act of the legislature which provides for taking over toll roads in a county on a fifty-fifty basis between the state and the county. Taking into consideration the five toll roads which lead into York it is estimated that the cost will be about $128,000 for the county.

Like the Lincoln Highway in York county is freed from toll roads the abolishment of others will come. Three others of the most important are the York and Liverpool company's pike toward Harrisburg, the York and Chanceford road and the York and Maryland pike leading to Baltimore. The total appraised value of these five companies is in the neighborhood of $245,000. It is of note that their combined gross earnings in 1916 totaled at least $58,000 and the combined net earnings for the same period $22,000.

Brigadier General Chase W. Kennedy has been assigned to command over all the troops in the Gettysburg Camp. This announcement was made at the War Department Tuesday, and published to-day. Since the establishment of the camp here, Colonel Jones, of the Seventh, as ranking colonel, has been head of the camp troops. It is understood that General Kennedy will take charge promptly. His family will have rooms at Gettysburg Academy where a number of the other officers' families are quartered most pleasantly.

The following made up the subscription list:

Total $81.00

A band stand will be erected in the Square and most of the concerts for the present will be given by the bands of the Fourth and Seventh regiments. Later the four other regimental bands which are to be organized will help with the program. The Citizens' Band of Gettysburg has promised to give one concert every two weeks.

On Tuesday afternoon a subscription list was started among the business houses about the Square and sufficient funds were quickly received to meet the cost of the lumber and labor for the stand. As soon as the weather permits, it will be built and the schedule of concerts will be started on the first clear evening.

The programs will be of a popular character and suited to please every one. They will enliven the town greatly and, in addition to providing entertainment for the soldiers, will be a great source of enjoyment to the townspeople and the hundreds of tourists.

START TO LIFT TROLLEY TRACKS

LARGE JOB NEVERTHELESS

Will Take Weeks to Clear up Everything in Town and on Field. Highway Force on Streets.

The work of lifting the tracks of the Gettysburg Railway Company was started on Tuesday, the first operations beginning at a point along East Cemetery Hill and continuing northward. The first day's work took the gang of men as far as the property of J. E. McCammon.

As the rails are taken out, the borough highway force follows and fills up with crushed stone. Later a steam roller will be put on the entire line and the street put into condition.

The siding in front of the cyclorama building was taken out on Tuesday. It had been installed in 1913 and the ties were in good shape but along the old line of the road the ties were nearly gone, and the rails lifted out of the ground without much difficulty. This, it is believed, will be the general condition through the central part of the town.

The rails will be shipped away to a purchaser, and later all the overhead work will be taken down. This includes the wires on the streets and in Centre Square. The poles that were used exclusively by the Railway Company will come down, also, and those which it shared with other public service concerns will be turned over to the latter who will then assume all responsibility for them.

The task of tearing up the railroad is not a light one and it is expected to require several weeks in the town alone. The battlefield work will require even longer, and it will be some time before everything is cleared up and the right of way put back into its original condition.

MAY ALL ENLIST

York City Band May Enter United States Army as Unit.

Action on a proposal that the City band, of York, enter the United States regular army as a unit will be taken at the regular meeting of that organization, next Monday evening. The band about four years ago made application to enter the Eighth regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, but for some reason was unsuccessful.

Sergeant J. J. Wall, United States army recruiting officer in York, is enthusiastic over the proposition. He said that it is altogether probable that, should the entire band enter the service, it would be kept together as a unit and appointed to a regiment as a regimental band. The City band consists of 40 pieces and is one of the best organized instrumental aggregations in the southern part of Pennsylvania. If the band enlists it will likely be assigned to one of the regiments now here.

SOLDIER MARRIES GETTYSBURG GIRL

Wedding at Lutheran Parsonage in Emmitsburg by Dr. Reinwald.

SURPRISE THEIR FRIENDS

Slip away Unnoticed and Return Later in the Day with Announcement of their Marriage.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Sara C. Weaver, of West Middle street, Gettysburg, and Arthur Hite, a soldier in the army camp here. The wedding took place in the Lutheran parsonage at Emmitsburg on Monday afternoon, the ceremony being performed by Dr. Charles E. Reinwald.

The wedding took the nature of an elopement and proved to be a complete surprise to the relatives of the bride and the friends of the bridegroom. On Monday Miss Weaver, who resided with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Weaver, left her home to attend to some errands for Mrs. Weaver. She did not return within the expected time and other members of the household were curious over the probable cause of her absence. That she had left town to be married did not occur to them.

About six o'clock in the evening bridegroom and bride came into the house and broke the news of the wedding with the simple announcement "We've been married". That their friends were taken by surprise is putting it mildly.

The trip to Emmitsburg had been made by automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Hite have taken rooms at the home of Harry B. Stock, on East Middle street, where they will make their residence for the present, at least.

The bride is a daughter of Nicholas Weaver, of Gettysburg, but had been living with her grandparents for the past twelve years. She was a student in the High School and would have been a member of next year's senior class. Mr. Hite's home is in Missouri. He is a corporal in Company C, of the Seventh Regiment.

ALBRIGHT—KAHLBAUGH

PLAN TO ORGANIZE CITIZENS' RELIEF

Red Cross Takes up Another Department of Work. Gift of Two Victrolas.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Red Cross was held Tuesday evening when the question of the organization of a branch of the Citizens' Relief was discussed. This phase of Red Cross work has to do with the care of dependents of the men who go to war. H. T. Weaver is in charge of the preliminary work and it is planned to have representatives in every part of the county.

Mrs. Lyman D. Gilbert and Miss Anne McCormick, of Harrisburg, have contributed $50 to the work of the local Red Cross for the entertainment of soldiers. The money was applied to the purchase of two victrolas and a number of specially good records have been secured. The machines are in the recreation rooms in the College Church and the First National Bank building.

Red Cross headquarters in the College Church are open every day and a member is in charge most of the time.

The Playground Association has decided to allow the use of the place by the soldiers. The base ball field, basket ball and tennis courts will be placed in repair for their use. Some of the men have already availed themselves of the use of the grounds and it is now planned to stage a series of games and contests between various commands.

The women of St. Paul's A. M. E. Zion church will stage a carnival Friday and Saturday evenings for the benefit of the Red Cross. The Seventh Regiment Band has been secured for the event.

JOHN A. SHEELY TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Citizen of New Oxford and Burgess of Hanover Died To-Day.

ANOTHER HANOVER DEATH

George F. Swartz, Another Former Adams County Resident, Dies in that Place. The Funerals.

John A. Sheely, a native of New Oxford, and for many years a resident of that place, died at his home in Hanover at five o'clock this morning, aged 49 years, and 9 months.

Mr. Sheely for several years had been suffering from a form of asthma but he had been confined to his bed for only a few days. He was generally known in Hanover, New Oxford, and Gettysburg.

He was born in New Oxford, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Sheely, his father being engaged in that town for a long time in the coal and lumber business. Both the parents are now dead. For some time Mr. Sheely taught in the schools of Hanover and later made his residence there, though he always retained an active interest in the affairs of the town of his birth. He held his membership in the Masonic Order there and was identified with several organizations in Hanover. He served several terms as Burgess in the latter place.

Mr. Sheely leaves his wife, two sons and two daughters. He also leaves four brothers and two sisters: George C. Sheely, W. F. Sheely, and Charles H. Sheely, of New Oxford; Edward Sheely, of Memphis, Tennessee; Mrs. Harry C. Sanders, of Gettysburg; and Mrs. A. G. Wolf, of West Fairview.

GEORGE F. SWARTZ

George F. Swartz died in Hanover on Monday night after a lingering illness from a complication of diseases, aged 66 years, 6 months, and 15 days.

He leaves his wife who, before marriage, was Miss Emma J. Gitt, of Union township; two daughters and three sons, Mrs. Charles Richter, near Bittingers; Ruel L. Swartz and G. Roy Swartz, of Hanover; Miss Margaret Swartz and J. Milton Swartz at home.

He also leaves five brothers and two sisters: Jacob S. Swartz, Emory A. Swartz, and Mrs. Louise Grove, Hanover; Charles Swartz and Morris Swartz, Taneytown; Riley Swartz, Gettysburg; and Mrs. Della Myers, New Oxford.

The funeral of Mrs. William H. Bringman will be held from her late home on Stevens street, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Paul Reid Pontius. Interment at New Chester.

TO AID FARMERS

New Game Code Now in Active Operation.

Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, on Tuesday issued a circular to the newspapers of the State asking them to call attention of their readers to the operation of the new game code, which was approved June 7 and making special reference to the clause which provides that "any person who shall either knowingly or negligently permit his dog, or a dog under his control, to pursue small game during the closed season" shall be liable to a fine of $10 for each small game may be pursued and to an additional fine of $5 for each game bird or rabbit killed by his dog pursuing game without the aid or direction of its master.

The officers, says Dr. Kalbfus, have been instructed to enforce this provision strictly.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE

Split German-Austrian Line into Two Parts. Take Village.

(By Cable)

Petrograd, July 11—General Korniloff, commanding the Russian forces, drove a further wedge into the Austrian-German line in the attack about Lemberg to-day. One town has already fallen and hourly advances are reported. The German army under General von Bothmer has been separated from the Austrians under General Kirbach and both are in imminent danger of strong flank attacks.

BOMBS ON SHIP

British Flyers in Action Passed over Constantinople.

(By Cable)

London, July 11—Direct hits on the Turkish-German cruiser "Goeden" are reported in a British aerial attack on the fleet of the two countries. The attack occurred at the "Golden Horn" a narrow inlet on the Bosphorus which separates the main part of Constantinople from Galata and Pera. The air raid must have taken the naval flyers directly over the city of Constantinople.

FALSE HOPE IN GERMAN AFFAIRS

Country Divided on Internal Policy but not on Military Program.

(By Cable)

Amsterdam, July 11—A coalition cabinet is impending in Germany say dispatches from Berlin to-day which quote "Germania", a newspaper. It is freely predicted that the retirement of the following will come: Foreign Secretary Zimmermann, Vice Chancellor Helffrich, Colonial Secretary Solff and possibly one or two other ministers. That Hollweg will retain his hold is generally predicted.

Zurich, July 11—The full meeting of the Reichstag scheduled for to-day has been postponed on account of "party differences", according to word from Berlin. Hollweg is said to be conferring with the leaders of all parties. One report received here has it that all the Prussian state ministers have resigned.

(By Telegraph)

Washington, July 11—An official warning issued by President Wilson to-day cautions the American people not to take any great hope from conditions in Germany. The press reports and official information contain no indication of criticism of Germany's military effort, and the movement in that country has more to do with internal politics than with the international situation. No real upheaval threatens Germany, at least for the present.

MORE NAMES

Ten Precincts are Included in The Times To-Day.

The names of the men who registered in the following districts appear on page three of to-day's Times: Hamiltonban First and Second, Latimore township, Littlestown, Liberty township, Menallen township, Mt. Pleasant First, Second, and Third, and McSherrystown First Ward. It is expected that the installment to be published to-morrow will take in all the remaining precincts. The weekly issue of this paper will contain all the names for the entire county.

GERMAN SUCCESS

Destroy All Bridges across the River Yser. Take Positions.

(By Cable)

London, July 11—A concerted German attack about Nieupoort, Belgium, penetrated the British line over a front of 1400 yards to-day. Field Marshal Haig's report tells that all the bridges over the Yser and other waterways have been destroyed.

READABLE LETTER FROM FRITZ HURD

Gettysburg College Boy now in France Tells of his Experiences.

AN INTERESTING LETTER

European Railway Travel Likened to Trolley Line between Hagerstown and Williamsport.

Fritz D. Hurd, a member of the 1916 class at Gettysburg College, now with Unit No. 10 in charge of an American base hospital in France, has written an interesting letter to his mother, who resides at Williamsport, Md. He has already seen and heard much of the horrors of the war. The letter is under date of June 12th. In the beginning Mr. Hurd describes his trip across the English Channel and arrival at Havre, and continuing says:

"Monday we left Havre and were on the train until 3:40 to-day. Gee, it was rotten. It took 16 hours to go 165 miles, but it is the best that can be done in war time.

"There were seven of us in a compartment. We came third class and four sat on one seat and three on the other facing each other. You know that all the train coaches are made of compartments. Dinkey little coaches about 1-3 as long as the big coaches at home. In England they ran comparatively smooth because the railroads are in good condition, but in France it is bad as those cheese box cars on the trolley line to Hagerstown. But all in all we had seven good fellows in our bunch and we passed the time away somehow.

"At six o'clock this morning the train stopped and I hurried up to the engineer and he ran some hot water in on my tea leaves, so I had hot tea with my 'hard tack' and cheese. Crider and I paid a franc and a half for a can of strawberry preserves, so that helped us out a lot. Tea is the big drink in England and here. When we were given our eats for the trip we were given a handful of tea leaves and a little sugar.

"We are situated on a very high bluff overlooking the sea. It is great here. We have tennis courts, baseball diamond, shower bath and the indications are for good eats. We are pleased very much with the location. We are glad to get located most anywhere as we have been traveling or rather shifting about for well on to four weeks.

"Last night at nine we went to our tents and at 9:15 started to undress. At 9:45 we retired and silence reigned in the camp.

"There has been some of the soldiers who have been fighting at Somme and Arras here and they tell us some stories. Yesterday on our way here our train stopped by some German prisoners who were repairing the track. They seemed to be a mighty clean and hearty sort of fellows.

"Every day there is a funeral here. They die of wounds received in battle. There are also some German injured who are prisoners here.

"The Y. M. C. A. has opened a post here. It certainly is of great help to the soldiers. They sell sweets, tobacco, soap, cakes, coffee, etc. They have newspapers printed in English, pitno, billiard tables, concert hall, etc., and the men certainly do appreciate it.

"Most of the large ambulances used in going down to meet the trains are driven by French girls. From a personal viewpoint I think the French girls are very pretty, most more so than the English girls.

"We were given a fine reception by the French people. With our American flag and Red Cross flag the crowds of people cheered and each man took off his hat. The French people like us very much and I am sorry we cannot talk with them.

"We're beginning to see some of the horrors of war. The men tell us some real tales of woe. We passed along the Somme yesterday."

Miss Marguerite Weaver, daughter of Mrs. Ella Weaver, of West High street, has been elected teacher of German and English in the Hanover High School. Miss Weaver is a graduate of Gettysburg College and formerly taught at Marysville.

NO PEACE TERMS

Hollweg Says Germany Must Fight and Conquer.

CONSENTS TO CABINET CHANGE

Chancellor Promises Reichstag Two Will Retire From Imperial Council and Five From the Prussian.

London, July 11.—German Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, according to a despatch from Amsterdam quoting the Kölnische Volkszeitung, promised the reichstag that he would consent to the resignation from the cabinet of Foreign Minister Zimmermann and Dr. Karl Helfferich, secretary of the interior and vice chancellor.

In addition, five members of the Prussian cabinet will be asked to resign.

It is believed this decision reflects the emperor's decision to stand by the chancellor in the crisis.

According to Berlin newspapers reaching Berlin, Switzerland, the chancellor told the reichstag that "the formula of peace without annexations is unacceptable to us. We cannot declare our terms of peace. We must fight and conquer."

The chancellor made a strong attack on Matthias Erzberger, leader of the Catholic center, who assailed the pan-Germans in his address before the main committee last week and advocated peace without annexations or indemnities. Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg said Herr Erzberger's attitude was unpatriotic.

A Berlin despatch to the Cologne Gazette, as quoted from Amsterdam, says that after the chancellor made his address, Matthias Erzberger, the center leader, declared that the debate had strengthened his conviction that the whole situation required energetic action by the reichstag. He combated violently the claims of the Pan-Germans and other annexationists.

To this the chancellor, according to the summary of his speech published in the Lokal Anzeiger, of Berlin said:

"We must continue the war with our whole energies. I do not deny that we have great difficulties to overcome but so have our enemies. We shall see whether their differences or ours are greater. I am sure we can win if we hold out."

"Nothing was further from my intention than to cling to my post, but now it is a question of protecting the Fatherland from injury, and for this reason I consider it necessary to retain my post."

The crown council called by Emperor William was held in Berlin, according to an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Amsterdam, but no announcement as to what took place at the gathering has been made, although it is believed a decision was reached on.

It is believed, says the despatch, that one of the results of the council will be the introduction of a franchise bill for Prussia granting universal, direct suffrage and the secret ballot.

A wireless despatch sent from Berlin says that the situation is unchanged. The tension, if anything, is more intense. The session of the reichstag was rather a perfunctory affair.

BLIND JEWELER; GET GEMS

Flee With Tray of Precious Stones After Daring Hold-Up.

Baltimore, Md., July 11.—Automobile bandits made their first appearance in Baltimore.

In a big, black touring car, two of the bandits drove up to the jewelry store of Walter Thurn, 860 West Baltimore street. One of the men went into the store and asked to be shown some unset diamonds.

Thurn was alone in his store at the time, and he pulled out a tray containing six small stones. They were valued at about $25 each. After examining the stones for a few minutes the man asked Thurn to show him a catalogue of ring settings. As Thurn was reaching under the counter for his pocket a celluloid powder-puff box, containing an acid, and threw it in Thurn's face. Blinded and strangled, for the moment, by the acid, Thurn was unable to offer any resistance to the stranger, when the latter picked up the diamonds from the tray and ran from the store.

Thurn was taken to a hospital in a serious condition. The police have no clue to the bandits.

Beaten and Robbed by Bandit.

Wilmington, Del., July 11.—A bandit entered James Arthur's restaurant at 261 East Eighth street, and, finding the proprietor alone, struck him with a blackjack, dazing him, and took the contents of the cash drawer, $39.85. The thief got away.

VOTE ON FOOD BILL JULY 21

Senate Committee Frames Amendments to Remove Objections.

Washington, July 11.—Unanimous consent to begin final voting on the food control bill and all amendments not later than 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, July 21, was given in the senate.

The cloture motion filed by Senator Chamberlain, Democrat, Oregon, was withdrawn. Senator Chamberlain is in charge of the bill.

The agreement was sought by Senator Chamberlain when it became apparent the storm of opposition to the prohibition and other sections would make passage of the bill within the next few days impossible. After Thursday, July 19, speeches will be limited to five and ten minutes.

Senator Chamberlain announced that he intended keeping the bill constant before the senate until the final vote. Opponents, including Senators Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts; Reed, Democrat, Missouri, and others, expressed satisfaction over the time given for further consideration.

In an effort to modify the bill to meet various objections, the agriculture committee was called together. Senator Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma, the chairman, prepared amendments limiting government control to food stuffs and fuel. The amendments eliminated iron, steel, copper, cotton and many other products.

Modification of the measure was decided on after it became apparent that there would be difficulty in obtaining its passage so long as it is loaded down with certain "riders."

Chief among these is the amendment of Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, which provides for the government to take over all liquors in bond. Others are the provisions for the government to control the price of many products.

WILL NOT FIX WHEAT PRICE

Hoover Denies Report, But Speculation Will Not Be Permitted.

Washington, July 11.—Reports that the food administration would fix an arbitrary price of less than $2 a bushel to the grower for the 1917 American wheat crop has drawn from Herbert C. Hoover this denial:

"It is not the intention of the food administration to fix the price for wheat, nor is it expected it will have any such power. If the food bill passes congress, we certainly will not stand for speculative buying."

The farmer will be protected, Hoover added, against centralized buying by the allies. All allied grain purchases will be made in the near future through one agency, probably the food administrator.

Mr. Hoover and his associates are said to feel the export price should be maintained at a figure that will induce farmers to increase production.

Enemy Seaplanes Destroyed.

London, July 11.—The commander at Lowestoft, says an official statement reports that the British armed trawler Iceland destroyed two enemy seaplanes and brought four prisoners into port.

TO PASS ON DRAFT

Exemption Boards Named For Pennsylvania.

APPOINTED BY GOVERNOR

Brumbaugh Names A. Mitchell Palmer Despite Their Wrangle. All Walks of Life Represented.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 11.—Governor Brumbaugh forwarded to Washington, at the request of Provost Marshal General Crowder, his suggestions for appointment to the nine exemption boards for Pennsylvania.

The governor announced that he had forwarded these names to Washington as requested by Provost Marshal General Crowder.

There are three boards for each of the three federal judicial districts in Pennsylvania. There are two boards for Philadelphia alone, and one board for adjacent counties.

The work of these bodies is distinct from that of the district boards. The district boards decide whether a man is exempt. If the decision is not satisfactory, the man goes before the appeal board. As a last resort, he may appeal to the president.

The medical profession, the business world, labor and other walks of life are represented on these appeal boards.

One of those selected by the governor for appointment is former Congressman A. Mitchell Palmer. Palmer and Dr. Brumbaugh have been bitterly at odds as the result of the former congressman's charge that the governor was swayed by politics in naming the district registration boards.

Another appointment suggested by Governor Brumbaugh is that of Vance C. McCormick, Democratic national chairman. There are to be five members for each board. The war department is expected to ratify the governor's recommendations, and make the appointments final.

Those named for No. 1 board, Philadelphia are: John Cadwalader, Dr. Charles H. Willis, Samuel T. Bodine, Julius Lamore.

No. 2 board, Philadelphia—Walter Willard, Dr. Frank C. Hammond, James J. Ryan, J. C. McDonald, Ellis A. Glumbel.

No. 3 (including Berks, Bucks, Lehigh, Northampton and Schuylkill counties)—John Hartman, Mohnton; Henry T. Moon, Morrisville; A. W. Hagenbach, Allentown; Dr. V. S. Messteker, Easton, and George M. Kaiser, Pottsville.

No. 5 (including Bradford, Cameron, Carbon, Clinton, Lackawanna, Luzerne, Lycoming, Monroe, Pike, Potter, Sullivan, Susquehanna, Tioga, Wayne and Wyoming counties)—George E. Stevenson, Scranton; Thomas Davis, Nanticoke; Dr. A. F. Hardt, Williamsport; A. Mitchell Palmer, Stroudsburg, and Frederick A. Osborn, Harford.

ROOT TO RETURN SOON

Washington Officials Pleased With His Work in Russia.

Washington, July 11.—America's mission to Russia, headed by Ellhu Root, virtually has completed its work in the new democracy and soon will start for home.

Administration officials expressed the greatest satisfaction over what has been accomplished by the mission. It is believed to have done much toward steadying the hand of Russia's provisional government by timely advice and assurances of unstinted and unequal support from the United States.

It has been reported that the mission will stop in Japan for an official call on the return trip. There has been no announcement on the subject.

Wine Left University Worries Georgia

Atlanta, Ga., July 11.—The Georgia legislature is confronted with the problem of disposing of 20,000 gallons of wine bequeathed to the University of Georgia by the will of Judson L. Hand. Executors of the estate withheld the bequest because its transfer to the university would be in violation of the state prohibition law. A bill is pending to sell the wine outside the state and use the proceeds to establish a scholarship fund.

United States Chief of Staff Promises Rumania Aid

General Scott and the military members of the American mission to Russia were welcomed formally to Rumania at the house of parliament in Jassy, where addresses of welcome were delivered by Premier Bratiano and other cabinet ministers. In reply General Scott said he had received reports concerning the needs of the Rumanian army and that his mission would use all possible energy to see these needs were satisfied.

PHYSICAL TESTS SEVERE

Men For Conscriptive Army to Get Rigid Examination.

Washington, July 11.—Regulations outlining physical requirements for the new national army issued by the war department set up rigid standards.

In general these are the requirements: Height, 5 feet 1 inch to 6 feet 6 inches.

Weight, between 118 and 211 pounds. These standards are not absolute. Men under 5 feet 4 inches must be of exceptionally good physique. Variations in weight above 211 pounds are not disqualifying unless sufficient to constitute obesity.

The mental test is designed only to develop whether the man is of sound understanding.

Examinations of the eyes and ears are made by charts and whispering tests.

Almost any disease of the lungs or heart is disqualifying.

The men must have at least four serviceable molars—two above and two below opposed.

Before the heart and lung test the conscripted man is required to jump straight up, kick the heels up behind, hop around the room, first on one foot, and then on the other and then make several standing jumps. After this exercise the examination is started.

The chest measurement should be between 31 and 38 1/2 inches.

The pulse and respiration must be nearly normal and the skin in good condition.

Chronic rheumatism, old dislocations and badly united fractures tend to disqualify.

Chronic disease of any kind will disqualify the drafted man.

The feet should be in fair condition. Pronounced flat feet disqualify.

Plans to sift out and exempt from fighting service workmen vitally needed in feeding, clothing, supplying and equipping the armies in the field are being perfected. A corps of experts are at work listing such industries as would be of aid in maintaining the armies.

From official sources it is learned the list probably will name farmers as a general class, miners, men engaged in shipbuilding, uniform workers of all classes and every branch of industry that aids directly or indirectly in maintaining the military forces.

KRUPP PLANT DAMAGED

Worker Says Quarter of Plant Destroyed by Airplanes.

Amsterdam, July 11.—Les Nouvelles of Maestricht, Holland, reports that Dutch workmen who were laid off at the Krupp works on account of the destruction of buildings in the recent French air raid, assert that a quarter of the Essen plant was destroyed.

The material damage is placed at millions of francs. It is said that 100 employees were killed and hundreds of others, including forty-five French prisoners, wounded.

One and possibly two French air planes dropped bombs on Essen on Friday. The official German report of the raid said only two bomb holes were found.

51 Die on French Liner.

Paris, July 11.—The French liner Caledonian was sunk by a mine or torpedo in the Mediterranean on June 30, according to an announcement issued by the ministry of marine. Fifty one persons were lost and 380 were saved.

Paris Hears of New Cologne Riots.

Paris, July 11.—New food riots which troops shot down the disorganizers have broken out in Cologne, according to information.

A FESTIVAL will be held Saturday,

July 14, at Pines Lutheran church, New Chester. New Oxford band will furnish music. All are invited.—advertisement

MUST CONTROL DOGS

State Employment Bureau Enrolls 2500 Men.

The State Bureau of Employment, a branch of the State Department of Labor and Industry, is taking steps to secure men for aiding farmers in harvesting. Employers are being requested to send to the Capitol the number of men in their employ who have had farm experience and who would be willing to work in the fields this year to assist in harvesting, if they can be spared from their daily occupations.

To date, approximately 2500 men have enrolled for this temporary return to the farm. In some sections Chambers of Commerce are enrolling men for farm work, the Department announcement instancing the Du Bois Chamber, which has opened an office in co-operation with the State Bureau with sub-stations in various nearby towns.

The department announces that during June it had 3141 applicants for places, 3171 applications from employers for workers; 2324 persons were referred to positions, and 2045 places. June is one of the best months.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of our dear son, Carroll Hahn, who died one year ago to-day.

One year has passed, our hearts still sore, As time rolls on we miss him more; His memory is as dear to-day As in the hour he passed away.

A precious one from us has gone A voice we loved is still, A place is vacant in our home That never can be filled.

By his parents.

What Industry Does.

"There is no art or science that is too difficult for industry to attain to; it is the gift of tongues and makes a man understood and valued in all countries and by all nations. It is the philosopher's stone that turns all metals and even stones into gold and suffers no want to break into its dwellings."—Lord Clarendon.

Man's Mind Like a Garden.

A man's mind may be likened to a garden which may be intelligently cultivated or allowed to run wild; but whether cultivated or neglected, it must, and will, bring forth. If no useful seeds are put in, then an abundance of useless weeds will fall therein and will continue to produce their kind.—James Allen

Male and Female.

A fashion page gives the information that bifurcated garments have taken a strong hold on the feminine fancy. For the benefit of those who do not clearly understand what this style is, it may be explained that a pair of trousers is bifurcated.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

A Patch on the Wall.

If your wall paper is disfigured by a stain that cannot be removed, procure some of the same paper and roughly tear from it an irregular patch which is a little larger than the stain to be hidden. Carefully paste this patch over the stain. The irregular, torn edge of it will almost defy detection.

Users of Milk Protected.

In France, to protect the public generally, and children especially, against the use of skim milk for their food, the sale of whole and skim milk by the same dealer is prohibited. Plain labeling is required, and even separate transportation for the skim milk is enforced.

No Fun in That.

Harold's imaginative aunt asked him if he wouldn't like to be as happy as the larks. "Now," said practical Harold, "think of the time they have to get up."

Mirrors of Twelfth Century.

From the twelfth to the fifteenth century small mirrors, carried in the pocket, or attached to the girdle, were regarded as indispensable adjuncts to ladies' toilets. The pocket mirror was a circular plaque of polished metal fixed in a shallow box and covered with a lid.

HANOVER TIES US FOR THIRD PLACE

Recent Victories Send up Rivals and Race now Becomes Keen.

HAD REST ON TUESDAY

Dykes Made Home Run after Yim
Doubled. Then Rain Came and Contest could not be Finished.

By taking another game from Martinsburg on Tuesday, while rain held the Ponies stranded in Hagerstown, Hanover's fast-going Raiders tied for third place and now look exceedingly dangerous.

Earl Mack has apparently worked wonders with the team from the York County town. He started his career by lifting two in Cumberland, and followed that by taking two more from Martinsburg on their own peculiar ball lot—which is some feat. Ask the Wardites if it isn't.

Mack is hitting like a fiend and is proving a worthy general. Buck Elliott, former Bucknell star and lately with the Harrisburg Internationals, has replaced Agnew at second base and is showing great form. Bittling, Spencer, and St. Martin are batting in a way to spread fear over the hearts of most pitchers and the Raiders are traveling.

Gettysburg will have to win some ball games if that third place berth isn't to be taken from it. To-day and to-morrow they are scheduled here with Frederick, and Friday and Saturday the great rivals meet at Hanover.
The last half of the week will, accordingly, mean a real test.

Yesterday the Ponies got away to a flying start at Hagerstown. Yim opened with a double and Dykes sent a terrific blow all the way over the left field fence for a home run. Dysert got a hit to open for Hagerstown, then came the rain, and the game was called.

The week of events of a varied character was further marked when the Ponies paid $10 for the cherries they picked from a farmer's tree near Halfway, Md., some time ago while the automobile was undergoing treatment.

The Bittern.

The bittern mentioned in Isaiah 14:13; 24:31, and in Zechariah 2:14, is a fowl about the size of the heron.
It is mentioned as the symbol of desolation. Nineveh and Babylon became a possession of the bittern.

Irritating Problem.

It is an irritating, nay more, a deeply saddening problem for a wise despotic to ponder the superabun-dant in this little world of ours of things cookable and the extreme rarity of cooks.—Maarten Maartens.

CHAPTER I—Set afoot and alone by an accident in the desert near the Rio Grande Mrs. Alaire Austin, mistress of Las Palmas and La FERIA ranches, meets Dave Law, Texas Ranger, at a water hole and is compelled to spend the night there with him, as he is in ambush for a murderer and cannot leave his post.

CHAPTER II—Law captures the murderer but is compelled to kill his companion, Pandio Sanchez, who happens to be a cousin of Mrs. Austin's horsebreaker, Jose Sanchez.

CHAPTER III—At Las Palmas Alaire tells her husband, Ed, that his carousals and inebriety must stop. Her cattle at La FERIA, the Mexican ranch, are confiscated by Longorio, Mexican federal general, and she finds that it is because she has been helping the rebel Junta.

CHAPTER IV—On her homeward journey in Mexico Alaire meets Longorio, who falls in love with her and agrees to settle for the confiscated stock.

CHAPTER V—Entertained at their home by Blaise Jones and his daughter Paloma, Dave hears something about the Tad Lewis outfit, which is suspected of cattle stealing. With Ricardo Guzman and his boys Dave and Blaise go on a scout after cattle thieves.

CHAPTER VI—Law catches two of the Lewis outfit branding a stolen calf and in a fight kills one and has his horse shot under him. He trails the other thief to Las Palmas, where he is insulted by Ed Austin, whom he knows to be very friendly with the Lewis outfit.

CHAPTER VII—Law follows up the trail of Urbina, the escaped thief, to no purpose except to confirm Austin's conjecture with the Lewis outfit.

CHAPTER VIII—On her homeward journey Alaire again meets Longorio, who openly makes love to her. She obtains the release of Juan Garcia from prison.

CHAPTER IX—Jose Sanchez swears to find out the truth about the slaying of Pandio. Dave gets further information about the Lewis outfit. Ricardo Guzman goes to Mexico to sell horses to the federales.

In offering to lend a hand in this difficulty, Alaire had acted largely upon impulse, and now that she took time to think over the affair more coolly, she asked herself what possible business of hers it could be. For her part, Paloma was troubled by no uncertainty of purpose; it did not seem to her at all absurd to go to her father's assistance, and she was so eager to be up and away that the prospect of a long evening's wait made her restless.

As usual, Ed Austin had not taken the trouble to inform his wife of his whereabouts; Alaire was relieved to find that he was out, and she decided that he had probably stayed at Tad Lewis' for supper.

The women were seated on the porch after their meal, when up the driveway rode two horsemen. A moment later a tall figure mounted the steps and came forward with outstretched hand, crying in Spanish:

"Senora! I surprise you. Well, I told you some day I should give myself this great pleasure. I am here!"

"General Longorio! But—what a surprise! Alaire's amazement was naive; her face was that of a startled schoolgirl. The Mexican warmly kissed her fingers, then turned to meet Paloma Jones. As he bowed, the women exchanged glances over his head. Miss Jones looked frankly frightened, and her expression plainly asked the meaning of Longorio's presence. To herself, she was wondering if it could have anything to do with that expedition to the Romero cemetery. She tried to compose herself, but apprehension flooded her.

Alaire, meanwhile, her composure recovered, was standing slim and motionless beside her chair, inquiring smoothly, "What brings you into Texas at such a time, my dear general? This is quite extraordinary."

"Need you ask me?" cried the man. "I would ride through a thousand perils, senora. God in his graciousness placed that miserable village, Romero, close to the gates of heaven. Why should I not presume to look through them briefly? I came two days ago, and every hour since then I have turned my eyes in the direction of Las Palmas. At last I could wait no longer."

Paloma gasped and Alaire stepped through the French window at her back and into the brightly lighted living room. Paloma Jones followed as if in a trance.

Longorio's bright eyes took a swift inventory of his surroundings; then he sighed luxuriously.

"How fine!" said he. "How beautiful! A nest for a bird of paradise!"

"Don't you consider this rather a mad adventure?" Alaire insisted. "Suppose it should become known that you crossed the river?"

Longorio snapped his fingers. "I answer to no one; I am supreme. But your interest warms my heart; it thrills me to think you care for my safety. Thus am I repaid for my days of misery."

"You surely did not"—Paloma swallowed hard—"come alone?"

"No. I took measures to protect myself in case of eventualities."

"How?"

"By bringing with me some of my troopers. Oh, they are peaceable fellows," he declared, quickly, "and they are doubtless enjoying themselves with our friend and sympathizer, Morales."

"Where?" asked Alaire.

"I left them at your pumping plant, senora." Paloma Jones sat down heavily in the nearest chair. "But you need have no uneasiness."

Alaire answered sharply. "It was a very reckless thing to do, and you must not remain here."

Longorio drew his evenly arched brows together in a plaintive frown saying, "You are inhospitable!" Then his expression lightened. "Or is it," he asked—"is it that you are indeed apprehensive for me?"

Alaire tried to speak quietly. "I should never forgive myself if you came to harm here at my ranch."

Longorio sighed. "And I hoped for a warmer welcome—especially since I have done you another favor. You saw that hombre who came with me?"

"Yes."

"Well, you would never guess it is your Jose Sanchez. He was distracted at the news of his cousin's murder, and came to me—"

"His cousin was not murdered."

"Exactly! I told him so when I learned the facts. I said to him, 'Jose, my boy, it is better to do nothing than to act wrongly. Go back to your beautiful employer, be loyal to her, and think no more about this unhappy affair.' It required some argument. I assure you, but—he is here. He comes to ask your forgiveness and to resume his position of trust."

"I am glad to have him back if he feels that way. I have nothing whatever to forgive him."

"Then he will be happy, and I have served you. That is the end of the matter." With a graceful gesture Longorio dismissed the subject. "It is to be my pleasure," he next inquired, "to meet Senor Austin, your husband?"

"I am afraid not."

"Too bad. I had hoped to know him and convince him that we federales are not such a bad people as he seems to think. We ought to be friends, he and I."

Under this talk Paloma stirred uneasily, and at the first opportunity burst out: "It's far from safe for you to remain here, General Longorio. This neighborhood is terribly excited over the death of Ricardo Guzman, and if anyone learned—"

"So! Then Guzman is dead?" Longorio inquired, with interest.

"Isn't he?" blurted Paloma.

"Not so far as I can learn. Only today I made official report that nothing whatever could be discovered about him. Certainly he is nowhere in Romero, and it is my personal belief that the poor fellow was either drowned in the river or made way with for his money. Probably the truth will never be known."

Longorio had come to spend the evening, and his keen pleasure in Alaire Austin's company made him so indifferent to his personal safety that nothing short of a rude dismissal would have served to terminate his visit. Neither Alaire nor her companion, however, had the least idea how keenly he resented the presence of Paloma Jones.

It was a remarkable wooing; on the one hand this half-savage man, gnawed by jealousy, heedless of the illicit nature of his passion, yet held within the bounds of decorum by some vague sense of respectability; and on the other hand, a woman, bored, resentful and tortured at the moment by fear about what was happening at the river bank.

It was late when Austin arrived. Visitors at Las Palmas were unusual at any time; hence the sound of strange voices in the brightly lighted living room at such an hour surprised him. He came tramping in, booted and spurred, a blighted look of inquiry upon his belated features. But when he had met his wife's guests, his surprise turned to black displeasure. His own sympathies in the Mexican struggle were so notorious that Longorio's presence seemed to him to have but one possible significance. Why Paloma Jones was here he could not imagine.

Alaire's caller remained at ease, and appeared to welcome this chance of meeting Austin. Luis Longorio was the sort of man who enjoys a strained situation, and one who shows to the best advantage under adverse conditions. Accordingly, Ed's arrival, instead of hastening his departure, merely served to prolong his stay.

It was growing late now, and Paloma was frantic. "Profiting by her first opportunity, she whispered to Alaire, 'For God's sake, send him away.'"

Alaire's eyes were dark with excitement. "Yes," said she. "Talk to him, and give me a chance to have a word alone with Ed."

The opportunity came when Austin went into the dining room for a drink. Alaire excused herself to follow him. When they were out of sight and hearing, her husband turned upon her with an angry frown.

"What's that greaser doing here?" he asked roughly.

"He called to pay his respects. You must get him away."

"I must?" Ed growled at her.

"Why don't you? You got him here in my absence. Now that I'm home, you want me to get rid of him, eh?"

"What's the idea?"

"Don't be silly. I didn't know he was coming—and he must be crazy to risk such a thing."

"Crazy?" Ed's lip curled. "He isn't crazy. I suppose he couldn't stay away any longer."

Alaire checked this outburst with a sharp exclamation: "Don't make a scene! Don't you understand he holds over fifty thousand dollars' worth of La FERIA cattle? Don't you understand we can't antagonize him?"

"Is that what he came to see you about?"

"Yes." She bit her lip. "I'll explain everything, but—you must help me send him back, right away." Glancing at the clock, Alaire saw that it was drawing on toward midnight; with quick decision she seized her husband by the arm, explaining feverishly:

"There is something big going on to-night, Ed! Longorio brought a guard of soldiers with him, and left them at our pump-house. Well, it so happens that Blaise Jones and Mr. Law have gone to the Romero cemetery to get Ricardo Guzman's body."

"What?" Austin's red face paled, his eyes bulged.

"Yes. That's why Paloma is here. They crossed at our pumping station, and they'll be back at any time, now. If they encounter Longorio's men—You understand?"

"Ricardo Guzman's body?" Austin wet his lips and swallowed with difficulty. "Why—do they want his body?"

"To prove that he is really dead and—to prove who killed him." Noting the effect of these words, Alaire cried sharply, "What's the matter, Ed?"

But Austin momentarily was beyond speech. The decanter from which he was trying to pour himself a drink played a musical tattoo upon his glass; his face had become ashen and pasty.

"How many men has he got?" the Austin nodded in the direction of the front room.

"I don't know. Probably four or five. What ails you?"

Something in her husband's inexplicable agitation, something in his eyes, desperate way in which his hands were running over the room, alarmed Alaire.

Ed utterly disregarded her question. Catching sight of the telephone, which stood upon a stand in the far corner of the room, he ran to it, and, snatching the receiver, violently oscillated the hook.

"Don't do that!" Alaire cried, following him. "Wait! It mustn't get out."

"Hello! Give me the Lewis ranch—quick—I've forgotten the number." With his free hand Ed held his wife at a distance, muttering harshly: "Get away now! I know what I'm doing. Get away—d—n you!" He flung Alaire from him as she tried to snatch the instrument out of his hands.

"Ed!" she cried. "Are you out of your mind? You mustn't—"

Their voices were raised now, heedless of the two people in the adjoining room.

"Keep your hands off, I tell you. Hello! Is that you, Tad?" Again Austin thrust his wife violently aside.

"Hello! Is that you, Tad?"

"Listen! I've just learned that Dave Law and old man Jones have crossed over to dig up Ricardo's body. Yes, tonight! They're over there now—be back inside of an hour."

Alaire leaned weakly against the table, her frightened eyes fixed upon the speaker.

"Yes! They aim to discover how he was killed and all about it. They crossed at my pumping plant, and they'll be back tonight, if they haven't already—"

The speaker's voice broke, his hand was shaking so that he could scarcely retain his hold upon the telephone. "How do I know?" he chattered. "It's up to you. You've got a machine—"

"Ed!" cried the wife. She went toward him on weak, unsteady feet, but she halted as the voice of Longorio cut in sharply:

"What's this I hear? Ricardo Guzman's body?" Husband and wife turned. The open double door to the living room framed the tall figure of the Mexican general.

STOLE GASOLINE

Some weeks ago, after seven stables were burned in Shippensburg, the authorities arrested Wilbur Hockersmith, a young man of Shippensburg, on the charge of setting fire to the structures. He was discharged for lack of evidence. Monday morning, about 2:30 Jacob Railing, a rural mail carrier, heard a noise in his garage. He investigated and found Hockersmith in the act of taking the gasoline out of his automobile. Railing's garage is in the same alley where the former fires were, and at that time gasoline had been used to help the conflagration. Hockersmith was arrested Monday and held under $800 bail for court.

THIEVES ANNOY FARMERS

H. W. Baird, who lives on the Petersburg road in South Middleton township close by the Reading railroad, had twenty fine laying hens stolen the other night. He is not the only loser in the same vicinity, however. Thieves have been quite busy and it behooves the county officials to take some notice of these cases. Mr. Shugart who lives near Mr. Baird had 30 chickens stolen and the farmer at Miss Emma Keller's lost 20. The home of Abram Tanger also was visited and here the thieves took the side curtains off the buggy, a shawl and some tobacco out of the buggy and some corn that was standing on the barn floor.

BERLIN ADMITS RETREAT

The Teton Positions West of Stanislau Are Penetrated to the Extent of Nearly Seven Miles.

Petrograd, July 11.—General Brusilov is again outflanking the Teutonic army and closing in on Lemberg.

Front despatches detailed the steady advance of this move under General Korniloff with Halicz, key city to the Galician stronghold, now all but cut off.

Additional villages have been captured. More than 1000 prisoners were taken. The Russians also captured three field guns, many trench mortars and machine guns and a quantity of war material.

The enemy has retreated to the Lomnica river. In two days the Russians have penetrated to a depth of six and two-thirds miles the enemy positions west of Stanislau.

The official statement says: "South of Brzezany there has been intense artillery fighting."

"In the direction of Dolina the army of General Korniloff continued its offensive in the region west of Stanislau. The Austro-Germans displayed energetic resistance which developed into stubborn counter attacks."

"More sanguinary battles occurred on the road to Halicz in the region of the villages of Huciska, Pacykov and Pavelsche. In the streets of Pavelsche there was bayonet fighting which ended in a complete rout of the enemy."

"Towards evening our troops reached the village of Bukovina, having occupied the villages of Viktorov, Majdan, Huciska and Pacykov. The enemy is retreating to the river Lomnica."

"The conduct and daring of our troops is above praise."

"There have been fusillades and scouting reconnaissances on the rest of the front."

"There was no change in the situation on the Rumanian and Caucasian fronts."

Berlin Admits Withdrawal.

Berlin, July 11.—The German war office announced that the German forces fighting in the Stanislau sector of the Galician front were withdrawn behind the Lomnica river.

Near Riga, Divinsk and Smorgon, on the northern end of the Russian front, fighting between the Germans and Russians has increased.

HOLDS PEKIN TREASURES

Manchu Leader Takes Troops into Pekin's Most Sacred Sections.

Washington, July 11.—As loyal troops of the republic surrounded Pekin, forecasting complete destruction of the monarchical movement, General Chang Huan, leader of the attempt to restore the Manchu dynasty in China, was reported by Minister Reinsch to have withdrawn his troops into the imperial city and the Temple of Heaven, the two most historic and beautiful sections of Pekin.

Uninterrupted communication with Tien Tsin was restored June 8.

Chang Huan's choice of the imperial city and the Temple of Heaven as his place of refuge after his desperate project had been swamped by a wave of universal republican opposition confirms the belief that he intends to hold China's priceless edifices as a pawn for his own personal safety.

The Temple of Heaven, a large inclosed space dotted with Blue-domed temples, was the scene of the most sacred worshiping under the old imperial regime, while the imperial city is filled with irreplaceable relics of old China.

Another despatch to the department said the republican government at Kankin had, in accordance with the announced confirmation of General Feng Kuo Chang as president and Tuan Chi Jul, premier.

According to this information, a decision has been reached to banish the emperor, the imperial family and the monarchist princes from Pekin, under surveillance.

HASHED BROWN POTATOES.—

There are some people who still insist on potatoes appearing on their tables, and if so, this is one way to use cold boiled or baked leftover potatoes. Chop fine five potatoes with a few sprigs of parsley and season well with salt and pepper. Into this stir three tablespoons of milk slightly thickened with a little flour. Have ready a hot greased griddle or omelet pan if you own one. Spread the potatoes evenly on the griddle and cook slowly, until set and brown enough to turn. Run a broad bladed knife or cake turner under the potatoes and fold over in omelet shape, pressing down the edges. Let cook a few minutes longer, then turn on to a hot platter. Dot with butter substitute and garnish with parsley.

Blancmange.—To one pint of sweet milk allow two tablespoons of cornstarch dissolved in a little of the milk. Put the remaining milk in a double boiler with four tablespoons of sugar and a pinch of salt. Heat to the boiling point, then add the dissolved cornstarch and boil for five minutes, stirring briskly. Take from fire, flavor with vanilla and pour into small cups and put in cool place till ready for use. Then turn on to small plates and serve with chocolate sauce.

Hot Chocolate Sauce.—One cupful boiling water, one square of chocolate, a pinch of salt, half a cup of sugar. Cook all slowly together until of the consistency of maple sirup, or thicker if wished. Just before serving add a teaspoonful of vanilla. This will keep well and may be served hot or cold or may be reheated.

Ragout of Mutton.—One and a half pounds of mutton from the neck cut into small pieces, one tablespoonful of butter substitute, a tablespoonful of flour, one onion and one diced carrot, two cupfuls hot water, six cloves, a bit of bayleaf, sprig of parsley, teaspoonful of salt and half a cup of pepper. Put the butter substitute in a frying pan and when melted add the flour and let it brown. Then add all the other ingredients and cook slowly for two hours. A short time before serving add a cupful of fresh or canned peas. Rice fritters are good with this dish.

Harvard Beets.—Wash two bunches of beets and cook them in boiling water till soft. Remove skins and cut into small cubes. Mix three tablespoons of sugar with half a tablespoonful of cornstarch and half a cupful of vinegar. Boil for five minutes. Pour this liquor over the prepared beets and let them sit on the back of the stove for half an hour. Just before serving add a tablespoonful of butter.

Marriage Custom of Swiss.

In some parts of Switzerland the maid of honor removes the bridal wreath at the church door and lights it with a taper, the bride in the meanwhile kneeling before the burning emblem of her maidenhood and saying a formal invocation for blessing on her married life, and it is held to be a very fortunate omen if the flowers flare up and burn quickly.

Relic of General Wolfe.

A new and valued addition has just been made to the museum of the Chateau de Ramezay. It consists of a cabinet containing a portion of the garnet silk sash worn by Gen. James Wolfe on the day he became the "victor of Quebec" in 1759. In addition to the sash are the original letters that prove unmistakably the authenticity of the relic.

No matter what your job, you can make it lead straight to success if you will specialize at that job and give it your absolute best. Substitutes for Flour.

About 30 flour substitutes tested by the United States bureau of chemistry have proved useful for bread when mixed with at least three times as much wheat flour. The substitutes include flours of chestnuts, bananas, soy beans, peanuts, peas, corn, barley, oats and rye. Bread of 12 parts of boiled potato to 9 of wheat flour proved satisfactory.

How About Other Senses?

"The sense of direction is so strongly developed in the average man," stated Professor Pate, "that he can rise in the middle of the darkest night that ever was, unerringly find his way clear through the house to a burglar proof safe, work the combination without a light, take out a bottle of hair restorer and drink heartily of its contents by mistake for the cough remedy which stands on the little table beside his bed."—Kansas City Star.

How Water Puts Out Fire.

Water puts out fire for two good reasons. First, if a thing is covered with water, the oxygen of the air cannot get at it to burn it. But that is not nearly the most important reason why water puts out fire. It is that water has a great capacity for heat, and can hold a great deal of it. It takes so much heat into itself, and so quickly, that it lowers the temperature of the burning thing so that it can no longer burn.

(Medical Advertising) SAGE AND SULPHUR DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound", you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, for about 50 cents.

Don't stay gray. Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

A Story of the Spanish Armada

By ELINOR MARSH

Traveling one summer in Ireland, I stopped at a farmhouse on Donegal bay. The farmer and his wife looked like other people of Irish descent, except that the mother did not have the clear, peachy Irish complexion, while the children were brunettes. I remarked to the farmer upon this dark skin of his children, whereupon he told me that there was Spanish blood in their veins. Going to a desk, he took out a manuscript and handed it to me. It was written in a woman's hand on parchment and evidently was very old. I was sufficiently interested in it to take a copy of it. Here it is:

It was midsummer, 1588, when one morning I was picking berries in the field and stopped to rest. Looking out over the bay, I saw a ship. Scattered here and there far and near were other ships. One of them was so close to the shore that I could see the standard she bore, and it was a strange one. The ship, which was a large one and with portholes for guns, was coming into the harbor. Her foremast was gone, and what sails she carried were in tatters.

This was the year of the famous Spanish armada. We in the north of Ireland had heard something about the Spaniards intending to invade England, but we got little news from a land so far away, and we had not heard that they had sailed up the English channel; that there had been a running fight; that many of the Spanish ships had been wrecked in a storm, that the rest, cut off from returning to Spain over the course they had come, had sailed to the northward of the Orkney Islands and were coming southward around the west coast of Ireland to get back home.

This ship I saw came into port evidently in distress. We had no means of defending ourselves. Indeed, we needed no defense, for the ship came in only to make such repairs as might enable her to make the voyage back to Spain.

I went down to the shore, where I watched a boat coming from the ship. It landed near where I stood, and the sailors carried a man wrapped in blankets on to the beach and laid him on the sand. The sun was shining, and the sand was warm and not hard to lie upon. The sailors left the man, returned to their boat and pulled back to the ship.

I went to the man and looked down upon him. His eyes were closed; but, hearing me, he opened them. He was no doubt very ill or much reduced from exposure. He spoke a little English and told me that he had been wounded fighting in the English channel. The rolling of the ship greatly injured him, and he had begged his comrades to take him ashore. If not rescued by some landsman he would prefer to die there rather than on ship-board.

He seemed greatly relieved to be lying where he was, so I left him to go to the house and tell father and mother about him. I took back to him some milk, which he drank and seemed to relish. Father was not minded to save a hated Spaniard from death, but at last I prevailed upon him to go with me to the stranger, and when father saw him and that he was very young and well favored he would have carried him to the house, but the invalid preferred to remain where he was so long as the sun shone upon him and the breeze fanned his cheek.

But when evening came he was removed to our house, where I gave him some bread and honey for supper, and he was laid upon a bed and at once fell into a sleep from which he did not awaken till the next day at noon. The first question he asked was whether the ship that had brought him had sailed, and when told that it had he was much cast down, for he said that he felt much stronger and would have returned to Spain in her.

These things he communicated partly in English words and partly by signs. No one except myself could understand him, so whenever he wished to communicate anything he did it through me. I nursed him and prepared his meals for him, and he would not permit any one else to do anything for him.

By the time he had recovered a Spanish ship that had been wrecked, but had been repaired, was ready to sail for Spain, and the Spaniard sent word to her commander that he would go with him as one of the crew. A boat was sent for him, and he bade goodby to father and mother and the children. I went with him to the place where the boat was waiting for him. But we never reached it. Looking down from an eminence upon the boat, I tried to permit him to go to it, but could not, nor could he leave me. We remained where we were, and when the night was coming on the sailors pulled away and left us.

I have written this that my children and my children's children may know how it came about that the blood of Spain and Ireland was mingled in them at the time of the great armada. My husband has long ago renounced his allegiance to the king of Spain and is now a lawful subject of King James. One thing has tended to balance the difference in blood—we are both of the same religion, being of the true and only Catholic church.

The farmer told me that the narrator of the episode was his grandmother many generations back. The offspring of the pair were girls alone, so the Spanish name was lost.

Family Pride.

I frankly confess I have a respect for family pride. If it be a prejudice, it is prejudice in its most picturesque shape. But I hold it is connected with some of the noblest feelings in our nature.—L. E. London.

OUR BOYS ABROAD RAID CANDY SHOPS

But "Sammies" Give Gold
In Exchange For Sweets.

A "FOUNTAIN PEN ARMY"

Frenchmen Note the Number of Those Articles Carried in the Blouse Jackets of the Americans—Yankees Warm Up to Canadians—Naval Officers in White Take Eye of Fair Parisiennes.

The demand for candy is strong in France from the American troops, but it has been met satisfactorily, although the boys judge the prices high. The beer they generally condemn, not for its quality only, but for its warmth. "Don't seem much of a place," was the comment, followed by the anxious query, "Can we have a better time in Paris?"

Money changing involves mental anxiety, but 5 francs are offered as the equivalent of a dollar by the shopkeepers and readily accepted. It surprised the French to be told that these Americans still were paid in gold.

France began to recognize the value of athletics a few years before the war, which confirmed their importance. It is possible the new American allies will provide France with a long felt want in popularizing baseball.

"A Fountain Pen Army," chaffed a Frenchman as he noted the number of those articles that the Americans carried in their blouse pockets and seemed to be part of their equipment.

"I am an old man for the army," said a corporal, answering a query of what motive brought him to France "but I have come to help wipe kaiser off the earth."

The American camp in France is splendidly situated on high ground and has been built within the month. It is lighted by electricity and has a fine water supply. The Y. M. C. A., which has installed a tent at the landing place, will open a large hut soon. The camp has taken on an American atmosphere.

It failed in no respect to meet the requirements of the overflowing tide of newcomers. It supplies picture post cards in large numbers and there is an "American bar," but American in name only. Ice cream soda is sought in vain.

An old looking French territorial who is on sentry duty along the docks, his hair grayed by three long years of service, beamed on the Americans doubtless thinking his days of labor were now drawing to a close. The women smile and feel their hearts lighter as they watch this fine pledge of the sister democracy's aid.

In the arrival of the troops children chased pennies that the American boys threw among them from crowded decks as the ships passed along the quay and rejoiced over every band as it headed its regiment, for it is seldom that bands are heard now in France.

Chum at Once With Allies.

The fraternization of the Americans with the English, Canadians, Australians and French is remarkable, and the new arrivals are being received everywhere with open arms and open hearts. Last month nearly all the British troops not having near relatives in the British Isles have been coming to Paris on leave, and so the newly landed Americans find plenty of comrades able to speak their common language.

The Yankees warmed up particularly to the Canadians, among whom are many Americans, but the greatest surprise came at the way the French officers and poilus fraternize with their new allies. The warmest feeling exists between the French and British soldiers and officers, of course, but when they first met three years ago as allies they were too busy fighting for their lives to spend much time in friendly intercourse.

The Americans, however, are landing just at the time when the allies have the Germans "on the hip," and the French are throwing off their clannishness to welcome the Yankee tars and marines affectionately.

Another factor is that after three years' contact with the British nearly every French person knows a few words of English—hello, cheerio, good luck and similar expressions—and they are using them overtime on the Americans.

Paris Women Charmed.

The appearance of American naval officers in white duck summer uniforms in the smart Paris restaurants causes gasps of astonished delight, especially among the fair Parisiennes, who admire the chic, cool appearance of the officers. Since the arrival of the Americans the police have had to wink at the law prohibiting singing and music in cafe and restaurants, as it is impossible to prevent the sailors, marines and regulars from gathering in quartets and teaching the Canadians and Australians the newest ragtime airs direct from America.

Too Young to Work.

Hundreds of boys who gave false ages to get work in New England factories lost jobs because too young to get registration certificates required by employers.

To Keep Slackers Out.
Bills are now in congress to bar forever from this country men who leave to avoid military service.

Oh, No, Doctor.

Doctor—"What you need more than medicine, is a good, refreshing sleep at night." Patient—"Oh, no, doctor, but I'm afraid the boss wouldn't like it. You see, I'm a night watchman."
